Raising strong cows in a spacious and comfortable feeding environment

Farm location

The shade of the pasture and grazing areas make it cool even in the summer!

Calves playing in the exercise field

Approx. 1,000m<sup>2</sup> of pasture ↔ Approx. 300m<sup>2</sup> of exercise field

This is the partition pole!!

Calf

This calving pen is set up with a pole laid through the center, so that the calves can stretch out and sleep without getting stepped on by their parents.

If you open the fence, you can get into the neighboring pasture. To build strong calves for shipping, we make sure they get plenty of exercise.

We have won many awards from the JA Kyoto Wagyu Breeding Association for the superior calves we produce.

The son, Minoru, is carrying on with the techniques his father has built up over the years, such as those having to do with how to refine the pedigree, body type, and disposition of cows that produce a superior quality of meat.

With regards to the handling and feeding techniques of Wagyu breeding cows over many years, the father was registered in 2005 as a 'Kyoto prefecture agricultural traditions technician', and in 2015 was certified as a 'Kyoto prefecture agricultural craftsman'.
